PER CURIAM.

This case involves two petitions by attorney N. P. (petitioner) for a writ of prohibition, writ of mandamus, or other relief, one restraining the Director of the Lawyers Professional Responsibility Board (director) from enforcing Rule 25, Rules on Lawyers Professional Responsibility, and ordering him to dismiss or limit his disciplinary investigation of petitioner and the second ordering the director to revise the charges issued against petitioner and dismiss those based upon DR 1-102, DR 2-203, DR 5-105, and DR 5-106 of the Minnesota Code of Professional Responsibility. These petitions are considered together for purposes of this opinion.

The facts that form the basis of each case are similar and involve legal manuevering of a kind that has resulted in unusually protracted judicial proceedings. In July 1979, the director began a disciplinary investigation of petitioner in response to a letter from a Superior, Wisconsin, physician charging that petitioner's firm has "flagrantly solicited ladies who have had Dalkon shields (sic) inserted for birth control over the past ten years and [has] wrought emotional havoc upon them. [Members of the firm] have flagrantly suggested that they could obtain a cash settlement from Robins Drug Company * * *."[1] This complaint was dismissed on September 28, 1979, with a finding of no unethical conduct. The director subsequently discovered evidence to substantiate the complaint, including evidence that petitioner had allegedly falsified in connection with the original investigation. Accordingly, on May 6, 1980, the director informed petitioner that the matter was to be reopened.

During 1980, 1981, and 1982, successive grand juries conducted detailed investigations of alleged wrongdoings by petitioner, culminating in his February 16, 1982, indictment in federal district court for mail fraud. Shortly thereafter, the director dismissed two additional complaints involving petitioner's activities: on April 6, 1982,

[1]This case does not involve the merits of the celebrated issues concerning the liability of the A. H. Robins Company with respect to the Dalkon Shield intrauterine device but involves, rather, charges of overreaching by an attorney in undertaking to obtain a share of the profits from such litigation.

a complaint alleging that petitioner had refused to turn over the contents of a client file to a successor attorney and on June 3, 1982, a complaint alleging that petitioner had refused to turn over a client file after representation. Both dismissals were limited to the specific complaints and are unrelated to the matter currently at issue.

Following petitioner's indictment, the director stayed investigation of the original complaint, primarily to avoid duplicating the trial court's efforts and to conserve the limited resources of his office. Petitioner was tried before a jury in federal district court and, on November 20, 1982, was acquitted of all charges.

The director then requested access to trial exhibits that he believed would aid his disciplinary investigation, but neither petitioner nor the government would produce them without court order. Consequently, in January 1983, the director filed with the federal district court a motion for release of exhibits, including those presented to the grand jury. Following objections by petitioner, the director amended his motion, withdrawing his request for grand jury exhibits. In his amended motion, the director cited petitioner's failure to voluntarily provide the exhibits pursuant to Rule 25, which requires that an attorney subject to a disciplinary investigation or proceeding cooperate with the director by complying with reasonable requests.

As a result of the director's action, petitioner, on June 13, 1983, moved for an order in Hennepin County District Court declaring Rule 25 unconstitutional and enjoining the director from enforcing it. The district court issued an order to show cause why the requested relief should not be granted. In response, the director petitioned this court for a writ of prohibition, claiming the district court lacked jurisdiction. On July 12, 1983, we issued a writ directing the district court to suspend or dismiss any further action in N. P. v. Hoover, No. C9-83-870 (Minn. July 12, 1983).

On June 20, 1982, while his action was still pending in Hennepin County District Court, petitioner filed a motion in federal district court likewise requesting an order declaring Rule 25 unconstitutional and enjoining its enforcement. The federal court issued an order, filed on September 19, 1983, refusing at that time to rule on the constitutionality of Rule 25 but ordering that the requested exhibits from petitioner's mail fraud trial be turned over to the director, provided the director obtained waivers of confidentiality from individuals whose medical records were included in the exhibits. Application of the Director of Lawyers Professional Responsibility re: N. P. v. United States of America, Cr. No. 3-82-32 (D. Minn. Sept. 19, 1983).

After receipt of the trial exhibits, the director continued his investigation and, on May 8, 1984, issued the following charges against petitioner:

Charge [No. 1]

Respondent's solicitation of cases and payment of referral fees violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to, DR 2-103(A)(2) and DR 3-102(A), Minnesota Code of Professional Responsibility (MCPR) .Re-Respondent's altering of law firm records to hide the payment of referral fees and respondent's directions to [an associate attorney] were attempts to subvert the disciplinary investigation and violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to, DR 1-102(A)(2), Dr 1-102 (A)(4). Dr 1-102(A)(5) and DR 1-102(A)(6), MCPR.

Charge [No. 2]

Respondent's payment of monies to [an insurance investigator] while [the investigator] was an Aetna adjuster and negotiating Dalkon Shield claims, undermined [the investigator's] loyalty to Aetna. Respondent's receipt of confidential information from [the investigator] to enhance his clients' cases subverted the adversary system. Respondent created serious conflicts ot interest for [the investigator] and took advantage of them to the detriment of respondent's clients, Aetna, A. H. Robins, and the legal system. Respondent's conduct violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 1-102(A)(2), DR 1-102(A)(5), Dr 1-102(A)(6), DR 5-101, DR 5-105 and Canon 9, MCPR.

* * * *

Respondent's failure to disclose to his clients his employment of [the investigator], breached his fiduciary duty to his clients. His settlement of Dalkon Shield claims with [the investigator], or [the investigator's] co-workers, jeopardized the settlements with Aetna due to [the investigator's] role in their settlement. His conduct violated the disdiplinary rules, including but not limited to DR 1-102(A)(5) ,DR 1-102(A)(6) and DR 7-101(A), MCPR.

* * * *

Charge [No. 3]

Respondent's failure to communicate with his clients and failure to obtain his clients' consents for settlement, some of which were settled in block settlements, violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to DR 1-102(A)(6), DR 5-105(B), DR 5-106 and DR 7-101, MCPR.

Charge [No. 4]

Respondent's failure to maintain in the trust account monies equal to the monies to be held in trust and failure to pay clients interest earned on client monies constituted misappropriation of client monies in violation of the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 9-102(A)(4), MCPR. Respondent's deposit of firm funds in the trust account and his failure to remove law firm monies from the trust account constitutes commingling of client monies with law firm monies and violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 9-102, MCPR. Respondent's failure to maintain proper books and records to determine interest earned on client monies violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 9-102(B)(3) and DR 9-102 (A), MCPR, and Opinion 9 of the Lawyers Professional Responsibility Board.

Respondent's paying insurance adjusters with whom the law firm negotiated cases undermined the adjusters' loyalty to their employers. Respondent created a conflict of interest for the adjusters and took advantage of them to the detriment of respondent's clients, the insurance companies, the insureds and the legal system. Respondent's conduct violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to, DR 1-102(A)(2), DR 1-102(A)(4), DR 1-102 (A)(5), DR 1-102(A)(6) and DR 5-101 and Canon 9- MCPR. Respondent's charging of clients for expenses not incurred constituted a conversion of client monies and violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 1-102(A)(4) and DR 9-102(B)(4), MCPR.

Pursuant to his authority under Rule 25, the director requested that petitioner provide certain documents and appear for a deposition on June 14, 1984.[2] Refusing to comply with the director's requests, petitioner, on June 6, filed his first petition with this court, requesting a writ of prohibition, a writ of mandamus, or other relief. Petitioner sought an order staying the scheduled deposition pending determination by the federal district court of the constitutionality of Rule 25 and dismissing charges because the board had unreasonably delayed its investigation or dismissing Charge No. 5 because information supporting it was obtained using a subpoena that violated the confidentiality provisions of Rules 9(d) and 20.

On June 19, 1984, the federal district court issued its determination that it could not rule on the constitutionality of Rule 25, finding that such a determination should be made by this court. This decision has been appealed. Application of the Director of Lawyers Professional Responsibility Board re: N. P. v. United States of America Cr. 3-82-32 (D. Minn. June 22, 1984), appeal docketed. No. 84-5123 (8th Cir. June 26, 1984). Thereafter, however, petitioner requested that this court determine the constitutionality of Rule 25.[3]

On July 9, 1984, petitioner submitted a second petition for a writ of prohibition, writ of mandamus, or other relief. In this petition, he objected to the charges filed by the director, claiming portions were vague, duplicitous, in-

[2]On June 1, 1984, the director served petitioner with a request for admissions pursuant to Rule 9(c). This request was not challenged by petitioner, although compliance with it has been stayed pending this decision.

[3]Petitioner made his request in his reply memorandum in support of his motion to strike Exhibit 1, attached to the director's memorandum in opposition to petitioner's June 6 petition. This court denied petitioner's motion on July 6, 1977.

adequately supported, and based upon unconstitutional disciplinary rules, specifically DR 1-102, DR 2-203, DR 5-105, and DR 5-106.

We deny both of petitioner's requests for extraordinary relief.

1. Initially we note that it is not always clear whether petitioner is seeking a writ of prohibition or a writ of mandamus under each petition, but we find it unnecessary to clarify that in this particular case. Because this action arises from the attorney disciplinary process, this court has original jurisdiction to issue either writ. Although the specific requirements for the writs differ, both require that the director's action or failure to act be improper. See, e.g., Minn. Stat. § 586.01 (1984); R. Civ. App. P. 120; State ex rel. Anderson v. Bellows, 287 Minn. 373, 179 N.W.2d 307 (1970); State ex rel. Ryan v. Cahill, 253 Minn. 131, 134, 91 N.W.2d 144, 146 (1958). We find no merit in petitioner's claims that the director is acting wrongfully and need not reach the issue whether the other requirements are met.

2 First Petition

a. Claim of undue delay

Petitioner claims that the director has unreasonably delayed the investigation for 5 1/2 years and that the investigation should therefore be dismissed. We calculate that the actual investigation was commenced 4 years before the charges were filed—a lapse of time still substantially longer than the average attorney disciplinary investigation—dating from the director's May 1980 notification to petitioner that because of new evidence the investigation of the Wisconsin physician's complaint was being reopened. Our concern, however, is not directed so much at the length of the delay itself but at whether the delay has resulted in prejudice to the attorney being investigated. In re Williams, 221 Minn. 554, 564, 23 N.W.2d 4, 9 (1946).

A fundamental goal of every disciplinary action is protection of the public. See, e.g., In re Hansen, 318 N.W.2d 856, 858 (Minn. 1982). Requiring prejudice to an attorney before dismissing an action for unreasonable delay is consistent with that goal. Unless the attorney has been unfairly prejudiced, it would not be in the public interest to dismiss a disciplinary proceeding simply because of a failure to prosecute promptly. Among the many cases consistently adhering to that principal are Ramirez v. State Bar of California, 28 Cal.3d 402, 619 P.2d 399, 169 Cal. Rptr. 206 (1980). In re Bossov, 60 Ill.2d 439, 328 N.E.2d 309, cert. denied, 423 U.S. 928 (1975); Attorney Grievance Comm'n v. Kahn, 209 Md. 654, 431 A.2d 1336 (1981); State ex rel. Nebraska State Bar Ass'n v. McArthur, 212 Neb. 815, 326 N.W.2d 173 (1982); In re Weinstein, 254 Or. 392, 459 P.2d 548 (1969), cert. denied, 309 U.S. 903 (1970); In re Wright, 131 Vt. 473, 310 A.2d 1 (1973).

We find no merit in this argument for dismissal. We add, moreover, that not only has there been no showing of prejudice but that much of the reason for delay is attributable to petitioner's own actions since November 1982 in resisting the director's investigation.

b. Designating petitioner by name in a subpoena

Petitioner requests that Charge No. 5 be dismissed because he was designated by name in a subpoena duces tecum served upon a banking institution to obtain information supporting that charge. Rule 9(d), by express terms, requires that an attorney under investigation be designated only by initials.[4] Furthermore, the confidentiality requirements expressed in Rule 20 apply to all disciplinary investigations.

There is no question that the full name designation of petitioner is a technical violation of Rule 9(d). Nothing in that rule mandates, however, that the sanction for a violation be dismissal of the charges under investigation, and in this case such a sanction would be most inappropriate.

We note at the outset that bank records cannot be obtained without full identification of the bank customer. More importantly, it was not the subpoena that broke the seal of confidentiality, for petitioner himself did so by identifying himself by name in his proceeding in Hennepin County District Court to halt the director's investigation. As we have recognized, rules protecting confidentiality in disciplinary investigations need not be so strictly enforced when the one being investigated has exposed the fact of investigation, such that there is little confidentiality to protect. See In re Gillard, 271 N.W 2d 785, 813 (Minn. 1978).

[4]Rule 9(d), Rules on Lawyers Professional Responsibility, provides:

> (d) Either party may take a deposition as provided by the Rules of Civil Procedure for the District Courts. A deposition under this Rule may be taken before the pre-hearing meeting or within ten days thereafter. The District Court of Ramsey County shall have jurisdiction over issuance of subpoenas and over motions arising from the deposition. The lawyer shall be denominated by initials in any District Court proceeding.

Petitioner also alleges that naming him in the subpoena violates the general confidentiality principles expressed in Rule 20, which in relevant part states:

> (a) The files, records, and proceedings of the District Committees, the Board, and the Directors, as they may relate to or arise out of any complaint or charge of unprofessional conduct against or investigation of a lawyer, shall be deemed confidential and shall not be disclosed * * *.

c. Constitutionality of Rule 25

Rule 25, of the Rules on Lawyers Professional Responsibility, establishes an attorney's duty to cooperate with the director during a disciplinary investigation:

> (a) It shall be the duty of any lawyer who is the subject of an investigation or proceeding under these Rules to cooperate with the District Committee, the Director or his staff, the Board, or a Panel, by complying with reasonable requests, including requests to:
> (1) Furnish designated papers, documents or tangible objects;
> (2) Furnish in writing a full and complete explanation covering the matter under consideration;
> (3) Appear for conferences and hearings at the times and places designated.
> (b) Violation of this rule is unprofessional conduct and shall constitute a ground for discipline.

Petitioner challenges this rule on the ground that it is void for vagueness.

The director contends, with merit, that this issue may not appropriately be raised by petitioner since petitioner's failure to cooperate has not been used as a ground for discipline pursuant to Rule 25, so that irreparable harm has neither occurred nor is imminent. We nevertheless address this issue under the principle that it "will settle a rule of practice affecting all litigants," and is a rule of "apparent importance to the litigants and to the bench and bar as a whole." Leininger v. Swadner, 279 Minn.

251, 259, 156 N.W.2d 254, 260 (1968) (quoting Thermorama, Inc. v. Shiller, 271 Minn. 79, 84 135 N.W.2d 43, 46 (1965)). Because the constitutionality of Rule 25 is certainly important to all litigants and the bench and bar as a whole, we think that if the rule is unconstitutional, extraordinary relief is appropriate.[5]

There is no question that attorneys subject to disciplinary investigations are entitled to due process. In re Ruffalo, 390 U.S. 544, 550 (1968). Due process includes adequate notice of the rules with which attorneys are expected to comply. A rule, like a statute, is void for vagueness if it fails to give a person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is prohibited or fails to provide sufficient standards for enforcement. Grayned v. City of Rockford, 408 U.S. 104, 108-09 (1972). However, as we held in Getter v. Travel Lodge, 260 N.W.2d 177 (Minn. 1977), difficulty in construction is not in itself sufficient to set aside a rule, and the rule "should be upheld unless the terms are so uncertain and indefinite that after exhausting all rules of construction it is impossible to ascertain legislattive intent." Id. at 180 (quoting Anderson v. Burnquist, 216 Minn. 49, 53, 11 N.W.2d 776, 778 (1943)).

The specific contention of petitioner is that Rule 25 does not define "reasonable requests." Due process, however, does not require that a rule contain an explicit definition of every term. See, e.g., In re Gillard, 271 N.W.2d 785, 809 (Minn. 1978); Walker v. Corwin, 210 Minn. 337, 340, 300 N.W. 800, 801 (1941). All that is necessary is that the rule prescribe general principles so that those subject to the rule are reasonably able to determine what conduct is appropriate. Ex parte Secombe, 60 U.S. (19 How.) 9, 14 (1856). Rule 25 gives examples of the types of requests that are considered reasonable, and other Rules on Lawyers Professional Responsibility, specifically Rules 8 (authorizing investigatory subpoenas) and 9 (governing requests for admissions, depositions, and evidence admissible at a panel hearing), contain further examples. Moreover, these rules are applicable to attorneys familiar with the type of cooperation generally expected in adversary matters.

[5]Consieration of the issue is not foreclosed even though the decision of the federal district court declining to rule on the issue is currently on appeal to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. As the United States Supreme Court held in Middlesex Ethics Comm. v. Garden State Bar Ass'n. 457 U.S. 423 (1982), federal courts must abstain and allow state courts to resolve issues in attorney disciplinary actions where "an adequate state forum for all relevant issues has already been demonstrated to be available prior to any proceedings on the merits in fedeal court." Id. at 437.

There is merit to petitioner's concern that the rule does not in express terms indicate whether good faith challenges to requests by the director may be deemed a failure to cooperate sufficient to invoke the sanction of the rule. A good faith challenge to a particular request will not be deemed such a failure to cooperate. Moreover, we hold that the Ramsey County District Court, which, under Rule 9(d), has jurisdiction over motions arising from depositions, also has jurisdiction over motions arising from Rule 25 requests. Such a procedure will provide an adequate safeguard against encroachment on constitutionally protected conduct and against other unreasonable requests. As thus modified, we hold that Rule 25 adequately comports with due process.

3. Second Petition

a. Challenges to the director's charges

Petitioner, asking this court to order the director to strike several statements in the charges and make others more definite, contends that the charges are too vague, contradictory, duplicitous, and inadequately supported.

It is important to note that we are dealing at this stage only with charges and not with a formal petition for discipline. The charges are issued only as part of a preliminary investigation to ascertain if there is probable cause for issuance of a formal petition. Cf. In re Agerter, 353 N.W.2d 908, 913 (Minn. 1984) (investigation of judge's misconduct). Petitioner will have adequate opportunity to assert such claims if and when the charges mature into a formal petition.

Given the preliminary nature of the charges issued by the director, we conclude that they need not comply with the stricter standard we would apply to charges in a formal petition but simply must give petitioner a general idea of what actions are being challenged. In considering the specific charges being challenged here, we are also mindful that we are not dealing with "a trap for the unwary" but with charges issued after years of investigation and litigation in related matters. Viewed in light of their informal nature and the extensive background peculiar to this case, we find the charges sufficiently specific to satisfy due process.

b. Constitutional challenges to disciplinary rules

DR 1-102(A)(5) and (6)

Subdivisions 5 and 6 of DR 1-102(A) provide:

(A) A lawyer shall not:

* * * *

(5) Engage in conduct that is prejudicial to the administration of justice.

(6) Engage in any other conduct that adversely reflects on his fitness to practice law.

Petitioner contends that these subdivisions are unconstitutionally vague.

The United States Supreme Court recognized long ago that "it is difficult, if not impossible, to enumerate and define, with legal precision, every offense for which an attorney or counsellor ought to be removed." Ex parte Secombe, 60 U.S. (19 How.) 9, 14 (1856). We ourselves have, in the comparable situation of applying a legislative standard of judicial conduct, similarly recognized that "necessarily broad standards of professional conduct" are constitutionally permissible. In re Gillard, 271 N.W.2d 785, 809 n.7 (Minn. 1978).

Disciplinary Rules 1-102(A)(5) and (6) do no more than reflect the fundamental principle of professional responsibility that an attorney, as an officer of the court, has a duty to deal fairly with the court and the client. This duty embraces all of the ethical strictures of the code of professional responsibility. Read in conjunction with the other disciplinary rules, we conclude, as have other courts, that these phrases are sufficiently well defined to satisfy due process. See In re Keiler, 380 A.2d 119, 126 n.7 (D.C. 1977); Committee on Professional Ethics & Conduct v. Durham, 279 N.W.2d 280, 283 (Iowa 1979); State v. Nelson, 210 Kan. 637, 639, 504 P.2d 211, 214 (1972);

Louisiana State Bar Ass'n v. Jacques, 260 La. 803, 823, 257 So.2d 413, 420 (1972); In re Rook, 276 Or. 695, 705-06, 556 P.2d 1351, 1357 (1976); Howell v. State, 559 S.W.2d 432, 436 (Tex. Civ. App. 1977).

The provisions of DR 2-103(A) deal with solicitation of legal services:

> (A) The following prohibitions shall apply to in-person or telephonic communications, and to employment resulting therefrom, but shall not apply to advertisement, written communications or to employment resulting therefrom, unless the communications contain false, fraudulent, misleading or deceptive statements or claims prohibited under DR 2-101.
> (1) A lawyer shall not recommend employment as a private practitioner, of himself or anyone associated with him to a non-lawyer who has not sought his advice regarding employment of a lawyer.
> (2) A lawyer shall not compensate or give anything of value to any person to recommend or secure, or as a reward for having recommended or secured employment by a client of himself or any lawyer associated with him, with the exception of public relations or advertising services.
> (3) A lawyer shall not request any person to recommend employment, as a private practitioner, of himself or anyone associated with him.

Petitioner's claim, that this detailed rule is vague. is patently without merit. His additional claim that the rule, on its face, violates petitioner's right of free speech is no less without merit in view of the decisions of the United States Supreme Court in In re Primus, 436 U.S. 412 (1978), and Ohralik v. Ohio State Bar Ass'n, 436 U.S. 447 (1978), and our own decision in In re Discipline of Appert, 315 N.W.2d 204, 210-15 (Minn. 1981). The basis of these decisions is that because of the potential for abuse, the state has a compelling interest in restricting solicitation of the kind proscribed by this rule. Whether the rule, as applied to petitioner, is unconstitutional is not in issue, for at this stage we do not have before us the evidence upon which the charge is based.

Under the provisions of DR 5-105(A)-(C):

> (A) A lawyer shall decline proffered employment if the exercise of his independent professional judgment in behalf of a client will be or is likely to be adversely affected by the acceptance of the proffered employment, or if it would be likely to involve him in representing differing interests, except to the extent permitted under DR 5-105(C).
> (B) A lawyer shall not continue multiple employment if the exercise of his independent professional judgment in behalf of a client will be or is likely to be adversely affected by his representation of another client, or if it would be likely to involve him in representing differing interests, except to the extent permitted under DR 5-105(C).

> (C) In the situations covered by DR 5-105(A) and (B), a lawyer may represent multiple clients if it is obvious that he can adequately represent the interest of each and if each consents to the representation after full disclosure of the possible effect of such representation on the exercise of his independent professional judgment on behalf of each.

Petitioner does not contest the well-settled principle that an attorney, like other fiduciaries, must avoid being placed in a position of conflicting interests. He bases his vagueness claim primarily upon the rule's failure to provide an objective standard for when "the exercise of his independent professional judgment * * * will be or is likely to be adversely affected," id., by multiple representation

The specific situations that would violate this rule as noted with respect to other rules, cannot be cataloged in detail. The words of the rule "will or is likely to be adversely affected" indicate that an attorney sensitive to fiduciary obligations will err, if at all, on the side of rejecting questionable employment.

Therefore the rule is not facially defective. A determination whether, as applied to petitioner, it violates due process must await introduction of evidence.

DR 5-106

Under the provisions of DR 5-106:

> (A) A lawyer who represents two or more clients shall not make or participate in the making of an aggregate settlement of the claims of or against his clients, unless each client has consented to the > settlement after being advised of the existence and nature of all the claims involved in the proposed settlement, of the total amount of the settlement, and of the participation of each person in the settlement.

Petitioner, noting that the charge refers to the making of "block" settlements rather than "aggregate" settlements, contends that the rule is impermissibly vague. Petitioner does not suggest that there is a difference between the two phrases but suggests only that the director's inconsistency indicates a vagueness in the phrase used in the rule.

Particularly when viewed in the general context in which the rule was invoked, we find it most difficult to see how petitioner was misled or misinformed. In any event, the conplete text of the rule needs no parsing of words and phrases to clearly inform an attorney as to the kind of conduct that is prohibited.[6]

The petitions for extraordinary relief are denied.

COYNE, J., took no part in the consideration or decision of this case.

[6]Petitioner protests the charge of violating Canon 9, which states, "A LAWYER SHOULD AVOID EVEN THE APPEARANCE OF PROFESSIONAL IMPROPRIETY," on the ground that canons themselves cannot form the basis of a disciplinary action. Whether or not this canon, standing alone. may in any context be a basis for discipline need not be decided now, for it is clear that petitioner is not in this case burdened by the recital of the canon.

LAWYERS PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY BOARD

In Re Charges of Unprofessional Conduct Against N. P., Respondent.

DIRECTOR'S CHARGES OF UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT, NOTICE OF PREHEARING AND NOTICE OF PANEL ASSIGNMENT

TO THE LAWYERS PROFESSIONAL RESPONSIBILITY BOARD:

Respondent is, and has been since December 5, 1949, licensed to practice law in Minnesota. Respondent currently practices law in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Pursuant to Rule 8 (c) (4) (i), Rules on Lawyers Professional Responsibility (RLPR), the Director of Lawyers Professional Responsibility (Director) submits to a Lawyers Professional Responsibility Board Panel (panel) these charges of unprofessional conduct for its determination of whether probable cause exists to believe public discipline of respondent is warranted.

INTRODUCTION

Identifications.

1. Willard F. Browne, hereinafter "Browne".

Until November, 1979, Browne was the primary adjuster for Aetna Life and Casualty Company (Aetna) on Dalkon Shield claims. He handled at least 174 Dalkon Shield claims with respondent. Respondent's law firm paid Browne over $40,000 during the time respondent was negotiating Dalkon Shield cases with Browne.

2. Margaret Hartman, hereinafter "Hartman".

Respondent's Dalkon Shield client and a friend of Orvill Heil, respondent's investigator. Respondent paid her for soliciting Dalkon Shield clients in the Duluth-Superior area

3. Richard Hunegs, Esq., hereinafter "Hunegs".

A Minnesota lawyer who along with respondent was the majority shareholder and managing partner of DeParcq, Anderson, Perl, Hunegs, and Rudquist, Ltd. (law firm) at all relevant times. The law firm's practice is and has been almost exclusively plaintiff's personal injury.

4. Norman Perl, Esq., herein "respondent".

Respondent has been president of the law firm since 1973. He and Hunegs were primarily responsible for all office management decisions, including the handling of client monies and the payment of monies to insurance adjusters and persons soliciting cases for the law firm.

5. Nancy Pouchnik, hereinafter "Pouchnik".

A bookkeeper in respondent's law firm from January 24, 1975, through November 21, 1979.

6. Dalkon Shield.

An intra-uterine device (IUD) manufactured by A.H. Robins Company from 1971 through 1974. Since 1975, approximately 3,000 claims have been brought against Robins in Minnesota for injuries allegedly resulting from use of the Dalkon Shield.

7. A.H. Robins Company, hereinafter "Robins".

Manufacturer of the Dalkon Shield.

8. Aetna Life and Casualty Company, hereinafter

Insurer for Robins for Dalkon Shield. Browne's employer.

9. Investigation Services Inc. fund, hereinafter "ISI".

Fund maintained by the law firm for paying insurance adjusters with whom the law firm negotiated cases.

10. Federal Employers Liability Act (FELA) cases.

Respondent's law firm is the designated counsel for the Brotherhood Railway Carmen of the United States and Canada (Carmen).

1. RESPONDENT SOLICITED DALKON SHIELD CLIENTS AND ALTERED REFERRAL RECORDS TO SUBVERT THE DISCIPLINARY INVESTIGATION.

Respondent paid employees a fee for each case referred to the firm. Respondent paid clients and non-employees for soliciting clients. Margaret Hartman was a Dalkon Shield client of respondent. With brochures and retainer agreements for respondent's law firm she solicited over 30 Dalkon Shield clients in the Duluth/Superior area for respondent. Respondent paid Hartman $1,700 for this solicitation and referral. Bookkeeper Pouchnik recorded the referral fee paid Hartman on the expense sheet for each Dalkon Shield client referred by Hartman.

On March 21, 1979, Robert Sellers, M.D., complained to the Director regarding respondent's solicitation of Dalkon Shield clients in the Superior, Wisconsin, area. After respondent was notified of the complaint, he directed Pouchnik to delete referral payments to Hartman from client expense ledgers and to put them on Hartman's client ledger as loans to Hartman. Hartman did not receive any loans from respondent. See Exhibit 1.

After Sellers' complaint, respondent twice directed associate attorney Stephen Eckman to go to the Duluth/Superior area to have each Dalkon Shield client sign a document denying respondent's solicitation. See Exhibit 2.

Charge

Respondent's solicitation of cases and payment of referral fees violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to, DR 2-103 (A) (2) and DR 3-102 (A), Minnesota Code of Professional Responsibility (MCPR). Respondent's altering of law firm records to hide the payment of referral fees and respondent's directions to Eckman were attempts to subvert the disciplinary investigation and violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to, DR 1-102 (A) (2), DR 1-102(A) (4), DR 1-102 (A) (5) and DR 1-102 (A) (6), MCPR.

2. UNDERMINING OF ADVERSARY SYSTEM

A. Simultaneous Employment of Browne

Respondent handled 318 Dalkon Shield claims against Aetna, 174 of which were settled for Aetna by Browne.

Until terminated by Aetna on November 15, 1979, Browne was employed full-time as the senior claims representative for Dalkon Shield claims filed with the Minneapolis Aetna office. Browne, a thirty-five year employee of Aetna, handled more Dalkon Shield claims than any other claims representative in the United States. Browne was privy to confidential information and legal opinions regarding the defense of Dalkon Shield cases. Browne attended or received information on national defense strategy meetings. Browne helped set the reserve amount which is the insurer's assessment of the value of the personal injury and determines the settlement limits for the company.

Between 1976 and November 15, 1979, respondent's firm paid Browne the following sums for work Browne allegedly did for respondent's law firm while he was employed simultaneously by Aetna:

1976	$7,505.00
1977	$2,500.00
1978	$11,115.00
1979	$21,496.00

See Exhibit 3.

Respondent directed Pouchnik to spread Browne's payments over the FELA files in alphabetical order in $75, $100 or $125 increments. Pouchnik had no substantiation of Browne's work on any of the files for which she was charging a payment to Browne. See Exhibit 4.

While employed by Aetna and respondent, Browne reviewed respondent's Dalkon Shield files. Browne regularly advised respondent as to additional work needed on these files to enhance the value of the claims. See Exhibit 5.

Charge

Respondent's payment of monies to Browne while Browne was an Aetna adjuster and negotiating Dalkon Shield claims, undermined Browne's loyalty to Aetna. Respondent's receipt of confidential information from Browne to enhance his clients' cases subverted the adversary system. Respondent created serious conflicts of interest for Browne and took advantage of them to the detriment of respondent's clients, Aetna, A.H. Robins, and the legal system. Respondent's conduct violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 1-102 (A) (2), DR 1-102 (A) (5), DR 1-102 A) (6), DR 5-101, DR 5-105 and Canon 9, MCPR.

B. Failure to Disclose

Respondent had a duty to disclose to his Dalkon Shield clients the existence of his non-adversarial relationship with Browne:

> The existence of the "business relationship" created, at the very least, a substantial appearance of impropriety with respect to Perl, and a serious conflict of interest for Browne. A reasonable client would certainly wish to know, and has a right to this information, before proceeding with settlement negotions. If Rice had known, she could have decided to engage another attorney to represent her, or might > have decided not to go forward at all. The potential risks to her could be serious. If Aetna later rescinded the agreement, Rice's reputation might suffer simply from having been a party, albeit an innocent party, to this arrangement. She was unfairly put in some jeopardy by her fiduciary. An attorney has an obligation to prevent placing his client in a position which might well taint a settlement transaction. The profession's standards of integrity demand no less.

Rice v. Perl, Browne and Aetna, 320 N.W.2d 407, 411 (Minn. 1982).

Respondent failed to disclose to his Dalkon Shield clients his relationship with Browne, including that respondent and Browne had a working relationship while Browne was settling Dalkon Shield claims for Aetna.

Charge

Respondent's failure to disclose to his clients his employment of Browne, breached his fiduciary duty to his clients. His settlement of Dalkon Shield claims with Browne, or Browne's co-workers, jeopardized the settlements with Aetna due to Browne's role in their settlement. His conduct violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to DR 1-102(A) (5), DR 1-102 (A) (6) and DR 7-101 (A), MCPR.

3. INADEQUATE REPRESENTATION

Most of respondent's 318 Dalkon Shield clients had little or no contact with respondent and knew nothing about the negotiation or settlement of their claims. Many of these clients never consulted with, spoke to, or even met respondent. Many clients' only contact was to sign a retainer agreement and receive a check. For example, on May 31, 1979, at least 26 clients went to the Duluth Radisson to pick up settlement checks. Some had not even consented to settlement before receiving their checks.

Several claims were settled as part of five block settlements. In four of these respondent and Browne agreed on a single settlement amount for several client claims and respondent had total discretion to distribute the proceeds among the individual clients. The fifth block settlement was between respondent and Aetna adjuster Speltz. Respondent entered into block settlements without the clients' knowledge or consent. See Exhibits 9-13.

Charge

Respondent's failure to communicate with his clients and failure to obtain his clients' consents for settlement, some of which were settled in block settlements, violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to DR 1-102 (A) (6), DR 5-105 (B), DR 5-106 and DR 7-101 (A), MCPR.

4. MISAPPROPRIATION, COMMINGLING, AND OTHER TRUST ACCOUNT IMPROPRIETIES

Respondent commingled large amounts of law firm monies with client money in the trust account. The commingled funds were regularly taken out of the trust account, invested and returned to the trust account. Interest earned was retained by the law firm. The law firm did not maintain books and records to identify client monies.

A. Misappropriation

The law firm maintained a trust checking account at Marquette National Bank, Account #1004-5144. Respondent directed the management of monies held in the trust account. In fiscal years 1979 and 1980 the average month end balance in the account was $162,000. Monies in the account sometimes were as high as $5,000,000.

Respondent failed to maintain client monies in the client trust account. The amount in the trust account on a daily or month-end basis was less than the amount of client monies to be held in trust. Although the bank covered shortages, the account sometimes on a daily or month-end basis was overdrawn. In November, 1979, the account was overdrawn $147,295 at the end of the month.

Respondent invested monies from the trust checking account in high return short-term investments. These investments were made frequently, sometimes eight or ten times in a month. The amount of money invested in each transaction was often several hundred thousand dollars to a million dollars. Respondent did not obtain client consent for investment of trust monies, identify interest accruing to clients or pay the interest to the clients. Respondent directed that the law firm misappropriate to its own benefit all interest earned on trust checking monies invested. See Exhibit 14.

B. Commingling

Hundreds of thousands of dollars of law firm money from the general account regularly were deposited in the client trust checking account with client monies. Respondend regularly left law firm monies in the trust account after distribution of settlement proceeds. Respondent regularly moved firm and client funds from the trust checking account to the trust savings account, general account, or into investments. See Exhibit 7.

C. Books and Records

Respondent failed to maintain client subsidiary ledgers or other books and records which would identify client monies held in trust. Respondent maintained a monthly due client list which allegedly identified client monies held in trust. However, the amount due a client often included the law firm's fees earned but not withdrawn. Therefore, the due client list did not identify client monies held in trust. Respondent failed to reconcile the client cash balance in the account. Because respondent failed to maintain the proper books and records the law firm was unable to determine client monies held in trust, invested or interest earned on client monies.

Charge

Respondent's failure to maintain in the trust account monies equal to the monies to be held in trust and failure to pay clients interest earned on client monies constituted misappropriation of client monies in violation of the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 9-102 (A) (4), MCPR. Respondent's deposit of firm funds in the trust account and his failure to remove law firm monies from the trust account constitutes commingling of client monies with law firm monies and violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 9-102, MCPR. Respondent's failure to maintain proper books and records to determine interest earned on client monies violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 9-102 (B) (3) and DR 9-102 (A), MCPR, and Opinion 9 of the Lawyers Professional Responsibility Board.

5. ISI ACCOUNT—LAW FIRM ACCOUNT USED FOR PAYMENT TO INSURANCE ADJUSTERS

In 1971, respondent's law firm incorporated Investigation Services Inc. (ISI). An ISI checking account has been maintained at Marquette National Bank since 1971, account number 10059772.

The ISI account was funded by client monies. When files were closed, Pouchnik prepared closing statements for review by respondent or Hunegs. For personal injury cases in which the client paid expenses, respondent and/or Hunegs added on an arbitrary ISI expense ranging from $10 to $2,300. See Exhibit 4.

At settlement, monies for client expenses, including ISI, were deposited in the general account. The ISI expenses were segregated and deposited monthly in the ISI account. Average monthly ISI deposits were $800 to $3,000.

The ISI monies purportedly were segregated to pay costs of investigation from a separate account. However, all costs of investigation other than some photographs were paid out of the general account. Further, the ISI payments were not directly related to any expense for the client's case.

Respondent directed payment of ISI monies to pay insurance adjusters with whom the law firm negotiated cases. Respondent paid Browne on one occasion with a check drawn on the ISI account. The adjusters did not submit any time records or statements to substantiate the payments.

Charge

Respondent's paying insurance adjusters with whom the law firm negotiated cases undermined the adjusters' loyalty to their employers. Respondent created a conflict of interest for the adjusters and took advantage of them to the detriment of respondent's clients, the insurance companies, the insureds and the legal system. Respondent's conduct violated the disciplinary rules, including but not limited to, DR 1-102(A) (2), DR 1-102 (A) (4), DR 1-102(A) (5) DR 1-102 (A) (6) and DR 5-101 and Canon 9, MCPR. Respondent's charging of clients for expenses not incurred constituted a conversion of client monies and violated the disciplinary rules, including but not necessarily limited to DR 1-102 (A) (4) and DR 9-102(B) (4), MCPR.

WHEREFORE, the Director prays that the panel find probable cause to believe public discipline is warranted and instruct the Director to file a petition for public discipline.

(j) Notification. The Director shall notify the lawyer the complainant, if any, and the District Committee, if any that has the complaint, of the Panel's disposition. If the Panel did not determine that there was probable cause to believe that public discipline is warranted, the notification to the complainant, if any, shall inform him of his right to petition for review under subdivision (k). If the Panel affirmed the Director's admonition, the notification to the lawyer shall inform him of his right to appeal to the Supreme Court under subdivision (l).

(k) Complainant's petition for review. If the complainant is not satisfied with the Panel's disposition, he may within 14 days file with the clerk of the Supreme Court a petition for review. The clerk shall notify the respondent and the Board Chairman of the petition The respondent shall be denominated by initials in the proceeding This Court will grant the review only if the petition shows that the Panel acted arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably. If the Court grants review, it may order such proceedings as it deems appropriate. Upon conclusion of such proceedings, the Court may dismiss the petition or, if it finds that the Panel acted arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably, remand the matter to the same or a different Panel, direct the filing of a petition for disciplinary action, or take any other action as the interest of justice may require.

(l) Respondent's appeal to Supreme Court. The lawyer may appeal the Panel's affirmance of the Director's admonition by filing a notice of appeal and nine copies thereof with the Clerk of Appellate Courts and by serving a copy on the Director within 30 days after being notified of the Panel's action. This Court may review the matter on the record or order such further proceedings as it deems appropriate. Upon conclusion of such proceedings, the Court may either affirm the admonition or make such other disposition as it deems appropriate.

hearing or deposition may be recorded by sound recording or audio-video recording if the notification thereof so specifies. A party may nevertheless arrange for stenographic recording at his own expense.

The files, records, and proceedings of the District Committees, the Board, and the Director, as they may relate to or arise out of any complaint or charge of unprofessional conduct against or investigation of a lawyer, shall be deemed confidential and shall not be disclosed, except:

(1) As between the Committees, Board, and Director in furtherance of their duties;

(2) In proceedings before a referee or this Court under these Rules;

(3) As between the Director and a lawyer admission or disciplinary authority of another jurisdiction in which the lawyer affected is admitted to practice or seeks to practice;

(4) Upon request of the lawyer affected;

(5) Where permitted by this Court; or

(6) Where required or permitted by these Rules.

(b) Special matters. The following may be disclosed by the Director:

(1) The fact that a matter is or is not being investigated or considered by the Committee, Director, or Panel;

(2) The fact that the Director has either determined that discipline is not warranted, or issued an admonition;

RULE 1.2 Scope of Representation

(a) A lawyer shall abide by a client's decisions concerning the objectives of representation, subject to paragraphs (b), (c) and (d), and shall consult with the client as to the means by which they are to be pursued. A lawyer shall abide by a client's decision whether to accept an offer of settlement of the matter. In a criminal case, the lawyer shall abide by the client's decision, after consultation with the lawyer, as to a plea to be entered, whether to waive jury trial and whether the client will testify.

(b) A lawyer may limit the objectives of the representation if the client consents after consultation.

(c) A lawyer shall not counsel a client to engage, or assist a client, in conduct that the lawyer knows is criminal or fraudulent, but a lawyer may discuss the legal consequence of any proposed course of conduct with a client and may counsel or assist a client to make a good faith effort to determine the validity, scope, meaning or application of the law. * * *

RULE 1.3 Diligence

A lawyer shall act with reasonable diligence and promptness in representing a client.

COMMENT:

A lawyer should pursue a matter on behalf of a client despite opposition, obstruction or personal inconvenience to the lawyer, and may take whatever lawful and ethical measures are required to vindicate a client's cause or endeavor. A lawyer should act with commitment and dedication to the interests of the client and with zeal in advocacy upon the client's behalf. However, a lawyer is not bound to press for every advantage that might be realized for a client. A lawyer has professional discretion in determining the means by which a matter should be pursued See Rule 1.2. A lawyer's workload should be controlled so that each matter can be handled adequately.

Perhaps no professional shortcoming is more widely resented than procrastination. A client's interests often can be adversely affected by the passage of time or the change of conditions; in extreme instances, as when a lawyer overlooks a statute of limitations, the client's legal position may be destroyed, Even when the client's interests are not affected in substance, however, unreasonable delay can cause a client needless anxiety and undermine confidence in the lawyer's trustworthiness.

Unless the relationship is terminated as provided in Rule 1.16, a lawyer should carry through to conclusion all matters undertaken for a client. If a lawyer's employment is limited to a specific matter the relationship terminates when the matter has been resolved. If a lawyer has served a client over a substantial period in a variety of matters, the client sometimes may assume that the lawyer will continue to serve on a continuing basis unless the lawyer gives notice of withdrawal. Doubt about whether a client-lawyer relationship still exists should be clarified by the lawyer, preferably in writing, so that the client will not mistakenly suppose the lawyer is looking after the client's affairs when the lawyer has ceased to do so. For example, if a lawyer has handled a judicial or administrative proceeding that produced a result adverse to the client but has not been specifically instructed concerning pursuit of an appeal, the lawyer should advise the client of the possibility of appeal before relinquishing responsibility for the matter.

RULE 1.7 Conflict of Interest: General Rule

(a) A lawyer shall not represent a client if the representation of that client will be directly adverse to another client, unless:

(1) the lawyer reasonably believes the rpresentation will not adversely affect the relationship with the other client; and

(2) each client consents after consultation.

(b) A lawyer shall not represent a client if the representation of that client may be materially limited by the lawyer's responsibilities to another client or to a third person, or by the lawyer's own interests, unless:

(1) the lawyer reasonably believes the representation will not be adversely affected; and

(2) the client consents after consultation. When representation of multiple clients in a single matter is undertaken, the consultation shall include explanation of the implications of the common representation and the advantages and risks involved.

Rule 1.8 Conflict of Interest: Prohibited Transactions

(g) A lawyer who represents two or more clients shall not participate in making an aggregate settlement of the claims of or against the clients, unless each client consents after consultation, including disclosure of the existence and nature of all the claims and of the participation of each person in the settlement.

RULE 1.10 Imputed Disqualification: General Rule

(a) While lawyers are associated in a firm, none of them shall knowingly represent a client when any one of them practicing alone would be prohibited from doing so by Rules 1.7, 1.8(c), 1.9 or 2.2.

(b) When a lawyer becomes associated with a firm, the firm may not knowingly represent a person in the same or a substantially related matter in which that lawyer, or a firm with which the lawyer was associated, had previously represented a client whose interests were materially adverse to that person and about whom the lawyer had acquired information protected by Rules 1.6 and 1.9(b) that is material to the matter.

(c) When a lawyer has terminated an association with a firm, the firm is not prohibited from thereafter representing a person with interests materially adverse to those of a client represented by the formerly associated lawyer unless:

(1) the matter is the same or substantially related to that in which the formerly associated lawyer represented the client; and

(2) any lawyer remaining in the firm has information protected by Rules 1.6 and 1.9(b) that is material to the matter.

(d) A disqualification prescribed by this Rule may be waived by the affected client under the conditions stated in Rule 1.7.

RULE 1.15 Safekeeping Property

(a) All funds of clients paid to a lawyer or law firm shall be deposited in one or more identifiable interest bearing trust accounts as set forth in paragraphs (c) through (f). No funds belonging to the lawyer or law firm shall be deposited therein except as follows:

(1) funds of the lawyer or law firm reasonably sufficient to pay service charges may be deposited therein.

(2) funds belonging in part to a client and in part presently or potentially to the lawyer or law firm must be deposited therein, but the portion belonging to the lawyer or law firm may be withdrawn when due unless the right of the lawyer or law firm to receive it is disputed by the client, in which event the disputed portion shall not be withdrawn until the dispute is finally resolved.

(b) A lawyer shall:

(1) promptly notify a client of the receipt of the client's funds, securities, or other properties.

(2) identify and label securities and properties of a client promptly upon receipt and place them in a safe deposit box or other place of safekeeping as soon as practicable.

(3) maintain complete records of all funds, securities, and other properties of a client coming into the possession of the pawyer and render appropriate accounts to the client regarding them.

(4) promptly pay or deliver to the client as requested by a client the funds, securities, or other properties in the possession of the lawyer which the client is entitled to receive.

(c) Each trust account referred to in paragraph (a) shall be an interest bearing account in a bank, savings bank, trust company, savings and loan association, savings association, credit union, or federally regulated investment company selected by a lawyer in the exercise of ordinary prudence.

(d) A lawyer who receives client funds shall maintain a pooled interest bearing trust account for deposit of client funds that are nominal in amount or expected to be held for a short period of time. The interest accruing on this account, net of any transaction costs, shall be paid to the Lawyer Trust Account Board established by the Minnesota Supreme Court.

(e) All client funds shall be deposited in the account specified in paragraph (d) unless they are deposited in:

(1) a separate interest bearing trust account for the particular client or client's matter on which the interest, net of any transaction costs, will be paid to the client; or

(2) a pooled interest bearing trust account with subaccounting which will provide for computation of interest earned by each client's funds and the payment thereof, net of any transaction costs, to the client.

(f) In determining whether to use the account specified in paragraph (d) or an account specified in paragraph (e), a lawyer shall take into consideration the following factors:

(1) the amount of interest which the funds would earn during the period they are expected to be deposited;

(2) the cost of establishing and administering the account, including the cost of the lawyer's services;

(3) the capability of financial institutions described in paragraph (c) to calculate and pay interest to individual clients.

(g) Every lawyer engaged in private practice of law shall maintain or cause to be maintained on a currect basis books and records sufficient to demonstrate income derived from, and expenses related to, the lawyer's private practice of law, and to establish compliance with paragraphs (a) through (e). The books and records shall be preserved for at least six years following the end of the taxable year to which they relate or, as to books and records relating to funds or property of clients, for at least six years after completion of the employment to which they relate.

(h) Every lawyer subject to paragraph (g) shall certify, in connection with the annual renewal of the lawyer's registration and in such form as the Clerk of the Appellate Court may prescribe, that the lawyer or the lawyer's law firm maintains books and records as required by paragraph (g).

RULE 5.4 Professional Independence of a Lawyer

(a) A lawyer or law firm shall not share legal fees with a nonlawyer, except that:

(1) an agreement by a lawyer with the lawyer's firm, partner, or associate may provide for the payment of money, over a reasonable period of time after the lawyer's death, to the lawyer's estate or to one or more specified persons;

(2) a lawyer who undertakes to complete unfinished legal business of a deceased lawyer may pay to the estate of the deceased lawyer the proportion of the total compensation which fairly represents the services rendered by the deceased lawyer; and

(3) a lawyer or law firm may include nonlawyer employees in a compensation or retirement plan, even though the plan is based in whole or in part on a profit-sharing arrangement

(b) A lawyer shall not form a partnership with a nonlawyer if any of the activities of the partnership consist of the practice of law.

(c) A lawyer shall not permit a person who recommends, employs, or pays the lawyer to render legal services for another to direct or regulate the lawyer's professional judgment in rendering such legal services.

(d) A lawyer shall not practice with or in the form of a professional corporation or association authorized to practice law for a profit, if:

(1) a nonlawyer owns any interestt therein, except that a fiduciary representative of the estate of a lawyer may hold the stock or interest of a lawyer for a reasonable time during administration;

(2) a nonlawyer is a corporate director or officer thereof; or

(3) a nonlawyer has the right to direct or control the professional judgment of a lawyer.

Rule 7.3 Direct Contact with Prospective Clients

A lawyer may not solicit professional employment from a prospective client with whom the lawyer has no family or prior professional relationship, by in-person or telephone contact, when a significant motive for the lawyer's doing so is the lawyer's pecuniary gain.

RULE 8.4 Misconduct

It is professional misconduct for a lawyer to:

(a) violate or attempt to violate the Rules of Professional Conduct, knowingly assist or induce another to do so, or do so through the acts of another;

(b) commit a criminal act that reflects adversely on the lawyer's honesty, trustworthiness or fitness as a lawyer in other respects;

(c) engage in conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation;

(d) engage in conduct that is prejudicial to the administration of justice.

(e) state or imply an ability to influence improperly a government agency or official; or

(f) knowingly assist a judge or judicial officer in conduct that is a violation of applicable rules of judicial conduct or other law.

COUNTY OF HENNEPIN

AFFIDAVIT OF STEPHEN S. ECKMAN

STEPHEN S. ECKMAN, being first duly sworn on oath, says:

1. Affiant is a licensed attorney in Minnesota, practicing in Minneapolis at 501 Butler Square, with the firm of ECKMAN, STRANDNESS & EGAN, P.A.;

2. Affiant was an employee of the DeParcq, Anderson, Perl & Hunegs (Respondents) Law Firm from August 1, 1972 through April 6, 1979, as an attorney;

3. While with Respondent's law firm, Affiant handled plaintiff personal injury cases and Federal Employer Liability Act cases (FELA files);

4 During affiant's employment with the Respondent's law firm, Respondent was a managing partner with Richard G. Hunegs, each owning fifty percent of the law firm;

5. Affiant was introduced to Willard F. Browne as a claims adjuster for Aetna Casualty Insurance Company (Aetna);

6 Affiant was aware that Respondent's law firm opposed Aetna in various legal matters in addition to the Dalkon Shield claims;

7. Affiant was not aware Browne had been hired by Respondent's law firm for any kind of work on any files, FELA, or otherwise;

8 Affiant became aware that Browne was granted access to Respondent's law firm offices on occasion, including a portion of the law firm in which client Dalkon Shield files were stored;

9. Affiant observed no work by Browne on any FELA files, nor did he observe Browne working on any FELA files in the offices of Respondent's law firm;

10. Your affiant, in reviewing numerous FELA files over the term of his employment with the law firm, observed no work product of any kind produced by Browne, or any references to Browne, in any FELA file;

11. Affiant was present in office meetings when Respondent and Hunegs instructed office attorneys to handle cases with Aetna, Browne's employer, differently than other insurance companies. Cases with Aetna were not to be placed in suit, but were to be given to Respondent for negotiation with Browne;

12 Affiant attended a general office staff meeting of attorneys and investigators in which Respondent instructed various attorneys in the room to prepare several Aetna cases for settlement discussions with Browne, who was to be in the office the following week. Respondent also said Browne was in Las Vegas, Nevada, on that date, and commented, "I don't know what that is costing me;"

13 Your Affiant did not work on Dalkon Shield claims in the law firm, but did see Browne in the law offices on many occasions with firm Dalkon Shield files in his possession, in the company of Respondent;

14. In early March 1979, Affiant was summoned to a meeting in Respondent's office. Respondent told those in attendance (Hunegs, Donald Rudquist, Orville Heil, and your Affiant) that he had just learned of a Complaint lodged against Respondent's law firm by a doctor in Superior, Wisconsin. At that meeting, Respondent directed Affiant to go to the Duluth/Superior area and meet with Respondent's Dalkon Shield clients in the Radisson Hotel. Affiant was instructed by Respondent to have each of the clients sign a document confirming that Respondent and his agents had not solicited the client's case, but that the clients had sought Respondent's advice and representation on the Dalkon Shield cases. Affiant refused to do this;

15 A second meeting was held at Respondent's law offices sometime later regarding the same subject matter as the above meeting. Affiant was also present at this meeting. Respondent again directed Affiant to go to the Duluth/Superior area, talk to the Dalkon Shield clients and have them sign the letter above discussed, but your Affiant refused again to participate in this activity. At that time, Respondent, Hunegs, Rudquist, and your Affiant dictated a strong letter to the doctor (and another doctor making a complaint from West Duluth) to hopefully dissuade the doctor from his complaint.

16 Further your Affiant states and verily believes that this final meeting was held on April 6, 1979, Affiant's last working day at Respondent's law firm;

EXHIBIT 5

STATE OF MINNESOTA

COUNTY OF HENNEPIN

AFFIDAVIT OF JOHN MICHAEL EGAN

I, JOHN MICHAEL EGAN, being first duly sworn on oath, says:

1. Affiant is a licensed attorney in Minnesota.

2. Affiant was employed as an attorney with DeParcq, Anderson, Perl & Hunegs (respondent's) law firm from January 1976, until April 8, 1979.

3. While with respondent's law firm, Affiant handled personal injury and probate matters.

4. During Affiant's employment with respondent's law firm respondent was a managing partner.

5. Affiant knew Willard F. Browne (Browne) to be a claims adjuster for Aetna Casualty and Surety Insurance Company (Aetna).

6. Affiant verily believes that within the period of January 1976 to April 1979, that Browne had not been hired by respondent's law firm to work on Federal Employee Liability Act (FELA) cases nor on any other kind of cases

7. Affiant frequently saw Browne in respondent's law offices on a weekly or more than weekly basis. Affiant saw Browne at respondent's law office's social functions.

8. At an office meeting for all lawyers and investigators in respondent's law office in early 1978, Affiant heard respondent to say Will says Aetna is paying on these (Dalkon Shield) claims and they should go out and sign up some of these cases.

9. During an office meeting at respondent's law office in the spring of 1978, Affiant heard respondent say Will says other lawyers are getting fifty percent on these (Dalkon Shield) cases and that respondent's office should do so too. Affiant did not agree to do this.

10. Browne never attended any of the regularly scheduled office meetings at respondent's law firm from January 1976 to April 1979.

11. At a 1978 Christmas party at which respondent, Browne, investigators for respondent's law firm and other employees were present, Affiant heard respondent say to Olson, an investigator, don't worry about Will, we're taking care of him.

12. Affiant handled approximately seventeen Dalkon Shield cases for respondent's law firm. Respondent did all the settlement negotiations on Affiant's files. Affiant was not present at the settlement negotiations.

13. Dalkon Shield cases were handled differently than other personal injury cases in respondent's law office. Other claims were handled with a view towards going to trial. Dalkon Shield cases were handled with a view toward settlement.

14. Late in November 1978, Affiant observed Browne going through a stack of ten to fifteen Dalkon Shield files in respondent's offices. Four of these files were being handled by Affiant. Affiant had not given Browne permission to review these files. These four files were settled between respondent and Browne as part of a group on January 31, 1979.

15 On several occasions, Respondent told Affiant that Browne said a case (Dalkon Shield) could settle for X dollars if respondent could get certain specific medical or biographical information into the file.

16. Affiant brought the Mary A. Pitman Dalkon Shield claim into respondent's law firm on a referral from another attorney. The issue of causation between the use of the Dalkon Shield and the alleged injury in the Pitman case was defensible as indicated in the medical record. In March of 1979, respondent told Affiant he had met with Browne regarding the Pitman case. Respondent said the case could be settled for $8,000 but thought he could get $10,000 to $14,000. Respondent further said Browne told him if a doctor's opinion could be obtained stating the Dalkon Shield was related to the injury they could get $18,000 to $20,000. On April 8, 1979, Affiant started his own practice and had physical possession of the Pitman file. On April 30, 1979, respondent sent a letter to Pitman, carbon copying Affiant. Affiant had not given respondent permission to negotiate for his client Pitman. The April 30 letter stated respondent had been offered $24,000 on the Pitman claim. Affiant then spoke to Ms. Pitman after receiving a copy of this letter and set up a meeting with respondent, Ms. Pitman and himself. This meeting was held May 2, 1979, at respondent's office. Respondent told Pitman that Aetna made an offer of $20,000 to $22,000 but he thought he could get as much as $24,000. The date of the settlement check to Pitman is May 8, 1979, for $24,000. There were no expenses on the settlement sheet for any further medical opinions or medical evaluations done on the Pitman case prior to negotiation and settlement. Affiant advised his client, Pitman, that it was in her best interest to accept the substantial settlement offer, which she did.

17. Affiant was aware that respondent's law firm paid referral fees to non-lawyer employees for bringing in cases to the firm.

18. Affiant was aware that respondent's law firm opposed Aetna in other matters in addition to the Dalkon Shield claims.

19. Affiant was never informed by respondent that Browne was available as an expert consultant for medical evaluations.
